ADIES AND CHILDREN will find a price store of F. Mortimer.

60 One of the acute sayings of a humorist is, "There's a great deal of human nature in horse trading, but few nssets."

A Yankee editor wishes no bodily harm to his subscribers, but he hopes that some of them in arrears will be seized with a remittent fever.

car A Wiltshire dame-the mother of a large family-was once asked the number of her children. "La, me!" she replied, rocking herself to an fro, "I've got fourteen-mostly boys and girls!"

At a friendly gathering at Holland House the conversation turned on love. Tom Moore compared it to a potato, because "It shoots from the eyes. "Or rather," exclaimed Byron, " because it becomes less by paring."

85 "Some confounded idiot has put that pen where I can't find it?" growled a man the other day as he searched about the desk. "Ab! um! I thought so!" he exclaimed in a lower key, as he took the article from behind his ear.

Can there be anything brought into this House," asked a disgusted member during the last session of the Legislature, "that will not be repealed sooner or later ?" One of the opposition suggested, " A skinned orange.

"On which side of the street do you live, Mr. Kipple?" asked a counsel. cross-examining a witness.

"On either side, sir! If you go one way, it's on the right side; if you go the other way, it's on the left."

23 There is an old California epitaph that has excited a good deal of interest, both from the character it describes and the question it asks. The epitaph is as follows: Here lies old Thirty-five per cent!

The more he had the more he lent : The more he got the more he craved: The more he made the more he shaved-Good God! can such a soul be saved?

A vender of "notions" was offering Yankee clocks, finely varnished and colored, to a lady not remarkable for her personal beauty. "Why, it's beautiful!" said the vender. "Beautiful, indeed—a look at it almost frightens me!" said the lady. "Wal, ma'ma," replied the Yankee, "I guess you'd better buy one that hain't no looking-glass."

What gender is sugar?" asked a teacher of the grammar class. "What kind of sugar?" asked the boy. "What kind?" repeated the teacher, "what has that to do with it?" "Why, if it's maple sugar it's feminine gender," said the boy, "Why feminine gender?" asked the teacher, with a puzzled face. "Because you can't tell its age," promptly replied the boy.

A story is told of two New England deacons, between whom a bitter feud had long existed concerning some contested point. Neither would yield, and the matter threatened to be handed down to the next generation, when one day Deacon Smith appeared before his enemy and solemnly said: "Brother Jones, it is a shame that this quarrel of ours should bring scandal upon the church. I have prayed earnestly for guidance in the matter, and have come to the conclusion that you must give in -for I cannot."

A Sunday School superintendent of an infant school was addressing his scholars, and told them of the Great Shepherd, the lambs and the sheep, as spoken of in Scriptures. He then asked them what they were. The reply was, "lambs." The next question was what the senior scholars were. "Sheep," was the response. To complete the catechising, he required with some justifiable pride, "what am I?" The energetic and startling reply came in infantile chorus, "The Old Buck !"

A quick-witted negro preacher had elaborated a new theory of the Exodus, to wit; that the Red Sea got frozen over and so afforded the Israelites a safe passage; but when Pharoah with his heavy iron chariots attempted it they broke through and were drowned. A brother rose and asked for an explanation of that point. "I'se been studyin' gography, and de gography say dat be very warm country-where dey have de tropics. And de tropics too hot for freezin'. De pint to be 'splained is, bout breaking through de ice." The preacher straightened up and said: " Brudder, glad you axed dat question. It gives me 'casion to 'splain it. You see dat was great while 'go-in de ole times 'fo' dey had any gography-'fo' dere was any tropics."
